What is a Résumé?

The résumé is a selling tool that outlines your skills and experiences so an employer can see, at a glance, how you can contribute to the employer's workplace.

Your résumé has to sell you in short order. While you may have all the requirements for a particular position, your résumé is a failure if the employer does not instantly come to the conclusion that you "have what it takes." The first hurdle your résumé has to pass--whether it ends up in the "consider file" or the "reject file"--may take less than thirty seconds.

The most effective résumés are clearly focused on a specific job title and address the employer's stated requirements for the position. The more you know about the duties and skills required for the job--and organize your résumé around these points--the more effective the résumé becomes.

You will need information to write a good résumé. Not just information about jobs you've held in the past but also information to select the most relevant accomplishments, skills and experience for THIS position. The more you know about the employer and the position, the more you can tailor your résumé to fit the job.

The New Top 5 Resume Writing Rules

In today's market, what used to work just doesn't work anymore. The resume writing rules have dramatically changed. Several years ago, when unemployment was 5% and LinkedIn and other tools weren't prevalent, you could get interviews with an older style resume. Today, you must follow these five rules:

1. Showcase Your Brand or Theme

The Objective that says, "Here is what I want" is dead and replaced with a simple headline like SENIOR PROJECT MANAGER. This must be followed by a well-written description of what you do best (brand), which is designed to differentiate you from the many other candidates.

Example: Corporate Troubleshooter regularly assigned to the most challenging initiatives.

This creates a theme for the rest of the resume so your opening essentially says, "Here is what I am best at," and the rest of the resume says, "Here is proof that I am good," by showcasing the results you have achieved.

2. Tight Writing

Today's resumes must be tightly written and very succinct. Fluff statements are out and overused phrases like visionary and dynamic are no longer the norm. Your sentences should be to the point and factual.

Example: Sales Executive charged to drive new business and penetrate existing accounts throughout the New York metropolitan area.

Your resume really doesn't need to go into all the job duties you performed. So, using the sales resume example above, you would not put in such things as called on prospects throughout the territory, attended trade shows, and made presentations. These are the normal tasks that sales professionals do on a regular basis and, certainly, the employer understands that.

3. Use the Harvard Format

You should also use what's called the Harvard format. In this format, your roles and responsibilities are in paragraph form and your achievements are in bulleted form. This makes it easy for an employer to quickly identify them.

Also note that, in this day and age, the notion of a one-page resume is a myth and what is most important is that the resume has a compelling story and is easy to read. Remember that your resume is an advertisement for your skills and is not necessarily a legal document designed to indicate everything you've ever done. Your purpose in the resume is simply to whet their appetite and get them to want to call you for an interview.

4. Support Your Theme with Strong Accomplishment Statements

You've established a theme and now you have to prove it by showcasing your accomplishments. Make sure your accomplishments are directly relevant to the position you're seeking and supports your theme or brand. So, highlighting the fact that you created a database that streamlined the process of ordering office supplies is not something that should go on your resume if you are looking for a sales role.

As much as possible try to quantify your accomplishments and indicate your performance against goals. In our sales example, stating you increased revenues $2 million year-over-year is very nice, but it really doesn't describe your accomplishments. Saying you delivered 135% of quota representing a $2 million increase in year-over-year revenues is a much stronger statement.

5. Include LinkedIn

Recent studies indicate that more than 85% of employers and virtually all recruiters will look for you on LinkedIn before calling you. So, make sure you have your LinkedIn ID on your resume and your profile is supportive of your overall theme.

- Join LinkedIn. It's easy and free at the basic level.
- Develop a complete LinkedIn profile to help others find you.
- Grow your network to increase your networking reach
- Get and give recommendations on LinkedIn to support and enhance your credibility and expertise
- Search for jobs on LinkedIn. LinkedIn aggregates jobs from LinkedIn and other sites
- Research companies on LinkedIn to find relevant information and contacts, all in one place.
- Use the LinkedIn search feature to find contacts in target companies.

Résumé Writing Rules

Rule #1: Fonts

Résumé writing can be typed in several different styles. Although Times New Roman is extremely popular, it can be overused. More than 90 percent of the Résumés seen are typed in Times New Roman. Your goal is to create a competitive, distinctive document. In order to achieve that, it is recommended that you use some of the alternative styles.

Your choice of typestyle should be dictated by the content, format, and length of your Résumé. Some fonts look better than others at smaller or larger sizes; some have “bolder” boldface type; some require more white space to make them readable. Once the Résumé is written, experiment with the following styles: All fonts below displayed in 12pt size

Calibri
Book Antiqua
Gulim

Times New Roman
Trebuchet MS
Cambria

Arial
Bodoni MT
Georgia

Rule #2: Font size

If the type size is too small, your Résumé will be difficult to read and difficult to skim for essential information. A too-large type size, particularly for senior-level professionals, can also give a negative impression by conveying a juvenile or unprofessional image.

As a general rule, select type from 10 to 12 points in size.

Rule #3: Talking in first person

Never use the word “I” in the body of the Résumé.

Rule #4: Contractions

Contractions give an air of casualness and informality.

The more formal your writing, the less frequently you should use contractions. For example: I ensured the company met “its” goals is correct to show the pronoun. “It” possesses the goal. Instead of using the contraction of the words, “I ensured the company met it’s target,” which is incorrect.

Remember, your Résumé is a formal document, be sure to omit abbreviations or contractions in your words or sentences

Rule #5: Homophones

Homophones are words that sound the same but have different meanings. For instance, “to,” “two,” and “too” are used differently in sentences. If you use them wrong in a Résumé, the reader may think you have little knowledge of elementary grammar or failed to edit your Résumé.

Rule #6: Subject-Verb Agreement

Have the subject of a sentence agree with its verb in number and person. If the subject is third-person singular, you must add an “s” to the verb. And if the subject is plural, do not add an “s.” Ex: “They manage multiple budgets.” The verb “manage” requires no “s” because the subject “they” is plural.

Rule #7: Dates

Leaving out dates—include dates on your Résumé. Leaving them out might seem like you are trying to hide certain information.

Rule #8: Cover Letter

No cover letter—a cover letter should be sent out with every Résumé; it is your sales document. It will augment your Résumé.

Rule #9: Email Address

Unprofessional email address. Ex: streetsmarts@gmail.com; Use an address that is professional. Your professionalism has to come through in your Résumé.

Ex: gsmith@gmail.com.

Rule #10: Information

Including personal information—Personal information, like age, gender, and head shot should not be included on your Résumé (unless you are a performing art student).

PERSONAL BRANDING

WHAT IS BRANDING? HOW DO YOU USE IT TO COMPETE?

1. A Brand is a Promise of Performance:
 - Will deliver a superior performance resulting in customer satisfaction.
 - Combination of tangible and intangible attributes that creates value.
 - Communication about the brand must be consistent.
 - Must be specific so it separates from competing brands.

2. Focus on Key Attributes:
 - Strengths (industrious or diligent, etc.)
 - Core accomplishments; (volunteer, internships, projects)
 - Education and training; employees who are on the cutting edge
 - Skills; hard and soft skills, interpersonal, technical
 - Values; team player, initiative, focused, responsible, decisive, etc.

3. Key Branding Tools:
 - Resume
 - LinkedIn, Facebook, Twitter
 - Personal Website
 - Elevator Speech
 - Networking
 - Interviewing

CAREER BRAND ESSENTIALS

A career brand must be...

- UNIQUE—true to yourself, different from all others.
- FOCUSED—on the key element that makes you superior, in demand.
- AUTHENTIC—no sense in developing a false brand; be true to your true expertise.
- MARKETABLE—no one wants yesterday's brand; your brand should have high value in the job market.

THE 4 C'S OF A RÉSUMÉ

CONCISE-

The vast majority of resumes should be one page long. If you have over 10 years experience, then maybe go with a second page, but most job seekers should be able to present themselves effectively in one page. Hit the high points of each position (you don't need to list every duty you may have had). Use succinct phrases rather than full sentences.

CONSISTENT-

If you use bullets, then use bullets under each position you held. Use action verbs when describing responsibilities and accomplishments. List dates the same way every time you put down a date, cities and states the same way every time you put down a place. Same with bold, italics or underlining – if you do it once, do it every time for the same type of information.

CLEAR-

A clear resume will have excellent formatting. If your resume is cluttered and messy, it will be difficult to read. Ensure you include bolded headings/subheadings and sufficient white space so that it is easy for recruiters and potential employers to skim through. Don't use abbreviations or industry terminology, since some recruiters may not understand these. Use plain English instead.

CORRECT-

Make sure that your address, phone number(s) and email are current. Make sure you do not have any spelling or grammatical errors. Do not lie and embellish your responsibilities or make up a degree that you don't have; most places acquire background checks and contact references to assure the information listed is correct and true.

"My resumé is not all lies!
My name is correct!"

"The one thing on your resume that concerns me is you misspelled your last name."

RÉSUMÉ 101:

Seven tips to help you catch an employer's attention.

By Robin Ryan

“A résumé is not about what you want. It's about what you offer an employer.”

“You have only a few seconds to snag the employer's attention,” writes Seattle based career coach Robin Ryan in Winning résumés, (John Wiley & Sons, Inc). “You must sell the employer within 15 seconds of looking at your résumé, or you'll lose the job.” Here are seven tips to help you catch an employer's attention.

1. Start with the basics.

It sounds obvious, but your résumé must include your name, address, phone number and email address. Be mindful of the address you include. College students, in particular, tend to move often, so include a permanent address, such as your parent's address. Take care with your email address too. Make your user ID related to your name, not any nickname attributions. You want to appear professional to an employer.

2. Include an objective or summary of skills.

These sections come right after your personal information and, for a first-time job seeker, should be concise. Your objective tells what you want and your summary highlights your skills.

3. Choose the right résumé style.

There are three basic types of résumés: chronological, functional and combination. Chronological résumés focus on work experience and list the experiences in order from most to least recent. Functional résumés concentrate more on skills. And finally, a combination style works well for first-time job seekers.

4. Brainstorm your experience and skills.

While you may be struggling to think of pertinent work experience, Ryan says that you have more than you realize. Don't underestimate the skills you have gained whether you have full-time or part-time work.

5. Your academic and volunteer experience is relevant.

Demonstrate your aptitude and strengths by project specific examples of class work you have done or volunteer work.

6. Know the cardinal rules of résumé writing.

Use strong action verbs and leave out the word “I.” Your résumé should be one page or two full pages. Always proofread.

7. Never, ever lie.

Don't misrepresent your past – it will come back to haunt you. For example, if you did not graduate, say “projected graduation date.”

20 Places to Get Experience for Your Résumé

By Billie Streufert

Employers want experience. You don't have to look far to get it.

Experience is not limited to paid employment. It can include any co-curricular activities or accomplishments that demonstrate your knowledge, skills, and abilities. Your college campus is rich with opportunities to gain experience, including:

1. Internships
2. Part-time employment or work study
3. Study abroad
4. Service-learning
5. Undergraduate research
6. Student activities or program councils
7. Special interest or professional organizations
8. Sororities or fraternities
9. Community service or volunteer work
10. Athletics or club sports
11. Choir or band
12. Student newspaper or radio
13. Student government associations
14. Resident assistants or community advisors
15. Admissions ambassadors
16. Orientation leaders
17. Tutors or supplemental instruction leaders
18. Theater
19. Honor societies
20. Homecoming planning committee

Contact your campus career center to locate the specific opportunities that are related to your professional goals. For example, if you are an education major, inquire about employment at local daycare centers. In addition to these opportunities, the staff can also help you locate summer employment or internships in your field.

Choosing a Résumé Style

Choosing a résumé style can be stressful the first time. Remember to choose a style that represents you—your talents, abilities, and experience.

When to use a Chronological Résumé:

CHRONOLOGICAL- (Focus on JOB EXPERIENCE)

- If you have a clear job target
- The next job is the logical progression in your career
- Current job is in healthcare, finance, science, or the engineering field
- Time oriented and lists employment experiences in reverse order starting with most recent job
- Works well for prospective employees with continuous employment showing career progression in their field

When to use a Functional Résumé:

FUNCTIONAL - (Focus on SKILLS)

- Desire to focus on transferable skills
- To downplay work gaps
- Reflect the type of work actually done
- Are changing careers
- Skills have been acquired through volunteer activities
- Re-entering the work force or changing careers
- New college graduate /entry level candidates without much work history

When to use a Combination Résumé:

COMBINATION - (Highlight your SKILLS & JOB EXPERIENCES)

- Emphasizes skills and competencies; including dates of employment
- How the Résumé is combined depends on specific experience and career field
- Combines the best elements of the chronological and functional formats

When to use an Electronic Résumé:

ELECTRONIC – (Most employers are going GREEN)

- So you may post (paste) the contents into online Résumé forms, such as at job banks and employer sites.
- So you may paste the contents into email to send electronically to employers and recruiters.
- So you may hire a Résumé distribution service to do both of the above for you.
- So employers may easily scan the paper version of your electronic Résumé into applicant-tracking software, using optical scanners.

Chronological Résumé

The chronological résumé is organized by job titles with the most recent position listed first.

Employer Rating:

Employers tend to prefer the chronological résumé because the format lists prior positions beginning with the most current. Employers perceive this résumé style as fact-based and easily skimmed.

Works Best For:

For job seekers with solid experience and a logical job history, the chronological résumé is the most effective. Career changers and those who lack formal on-the-job experience (like new graduates) find this résumé the most difficult to write.

Functional Résumé

The functional résumé rearranges employment history into sections that highlight areas of skill and accomplishment.

Employer Rating:

Some employers dislike functional résumé if they find it difficult to match up skills with actual job titles, level of responsibility and dates of experience. You can, and SHOULD, avoid or minimize this objection by including the company name in the "bullet" describing each accomplishment.

For example:

Program Coordination

- Coordinated the logistics of opening two HILLCREST Residential Treatment Centers, which included the hiring and training of staff, supervising the set-up of the physical plant, and developing programs.
- Oversaw the computerization of the BEHRING CLINIC accounting unit from initial planning through successful implementation, with no disruption in service.

If you want to take advantage of the benefits of a functional résumé, you MUST make it EASY for employers to visualize your overall chronological work history and link your accomplishment statements to it. NEVER omit at least a bare-bones chronological listing of your work experience, in your functional résumé.

Works Best For:

The functional résumé might be thought of as a "problem solving" format. The functional résumé gives you latitude to "make sense" of your work history and match up skills and accomplishments that might not be obvious to the employer in a traditional chronological format. If any of the descriptions below apply to you, you may want to investigate the functional format:

- You have a "mixed bag" work history: no clear thread uniting positions held.
- You are a new graduate or entering the workforce. You must show how the skills you have used in the past (in volunteer or coursework) apply to the job you are seeking.
- Your job titles, such as "Administrative Assistant" or "Marketing Coordinator," do not clearly reflect the level of skills you used.
- You are making a career change--either changing industry (from Hospitals to Pharmaceuticals) or changing occupation (from Manufacturing Technician to Sales Representative.)

The functional résumé might be thought of as a "problem solving" format. The functional résumé gives you latitude to "make sense" of your work history and match up skills and accomplishments that might not be obvious to the employer in a traditional chronological format.

Combination Résumé

Who is the Combination Résumé format best suited for?

- If you have done the same kind of basic work for a number of employers, you will not be repeating the same job responsibilities. You can list each duty/skill set once.
- If you are changing careers, you are able to focus the reader's attention on your skills and achievements rather than on your previous job titles.
- If you have a variety of work experience in unrelated fields, this format allows you to emphasize your abilities rather than your employers.
- If you are a recent college graduate, you can downplay your lack of previous employment by targeting other features, such as honors, awards, and volunteer work, as well as listing the related experience you DO have first.

The Combination Résumé Format may be the one or you

When using any résumé format (combination or otherwise), remember to target the information toward the specific job and company. Today's competitive marketplace demands this kind of attention to résumés. Remember, other job candidates will be doing their very best to get the same job you are after. If you don't present yourself in the best possible light, you may have no chance at all of getting the job you desire.

You have to be very astute in deciding what you want to include and where you want to place it so that the person reading it is immediately drawn in – to the point of wanting them to call YOU for an interview.

Electronic Résumé

Electronic résumés are being used more frequently as many midsized and large companies begin using computers to scan résumés. Job hunters need to know that computers read résumés differently than people do. Here are a few tips:

1. Put your name as the first readable item on the page.
2. Substitute a “keyword Summary” for your career objective.
3. Use nouns.
4. Use Helvetica type (or other non-serif font) and 10 – 14 point type.
5. Use white (preferred) or light-colored paper, printed on one side.
6. Avoid italics, underlining, shading and graphics, and horizontal and vertical lines; also avoid staples and folds.
7. Choose keyword nouns that the computer/scanner will identify as relevant to the job opening. For example, the key words for accountant might include “BS accounting, accounts payable, and accounts receivable.” The more key words, the better your chances of catching the employer’s attention.
8. Avoid columns and tables, although a simple two-column listing can be read without difficulty. Spell out symbols such as % and &.
9. Consider using horizontal dividers to break the Résumé into sections. You can use a row of any typewriter symbols (* - () = + ^ #).

Curriculum Vitae (CV) vs. a Resume

What Is the Difference Between a Resume and a CV?

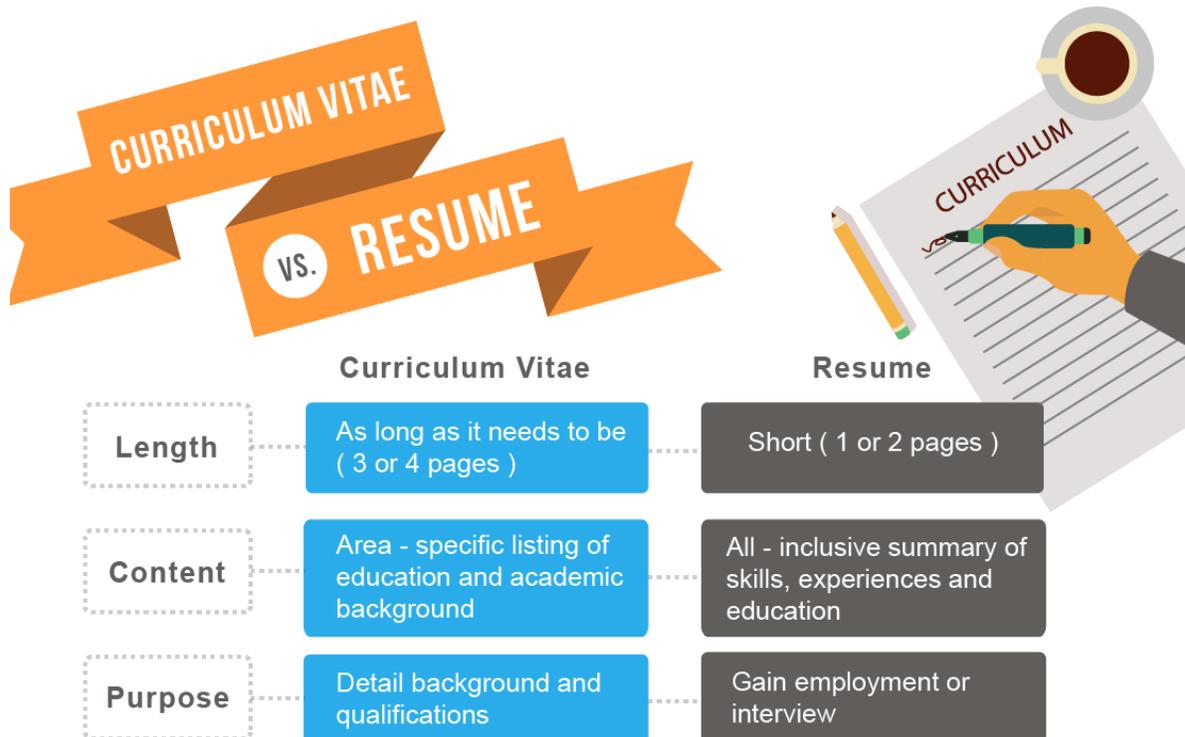

The primary differences between a resume and a curriculum vitae (CV) are length, what is included, and what each is used for. While both are used in job applications, a resume and a CV are not always interchangeable.

What Is a Curriculum Vitae?

Like a resume, a curriculum vitae (CV) provides a summary of one's experience and skills. Typically, CVs are longer than resumes – at least two or three pages.

CVs include information on one's academic background, including teaching experience, degrees, research, awards, publications, presentations, and other achievements. CVs are thus much longer than resumes, and include more information, particularly related to academic background.

A curriculum vitae summary is a one-to-two-page, condensed version of a full curriculum vitae. A CV summary is a way to quickly and concisely convey one's skills and qualifications. Sometimes large organizations will ask for a one-page CV summary when they expect a large pool of applicants.

Building a Career Portfolio

Career Central™ Advice

Career Portfolios: Getting Started

Validating the claims you make in your résumé and cover letter.

Career portfolios: Proof of your potential.

Traditionally associated with artists and other creative types in the job market, portfolios are joining the digital age. Bulky cases and three-ring binders are being reinvented to fit today's sleek, versatile medium: the Internet. Job seekers from designers to teachers and dental hygienists can easily create an effective online collection of files and documents that showcase their strengths, market their individuality, and improve their chances of being hired.

Why create an online career portfolio?

Unlike cover letters that briefly explain your job eligibility, or résumés, which simply list your qualifications and experience, career portfolios provide an in-depth picture of who you are and what you've accomplished. Digital documents, multimedia examples of your work, personal statements, achievements, and references tangibly support what you claim in your cover letter and résumé.

Online career portfolios are a powerful tool to market you. They exhibit your capabilities by neatly bundling digital work samples, audio and video clips, recommendations, awards, personal experience and more, into one easily accessible, easily updatable package.

Plus, online portfolios can save time. Present your materials to employers well in advance of an in-person interview, possibly even before other candidates do; you may be hired sooner.

It's your life: What to include.

Consider what is relevant to you and your job search. Here, activities, evaluations, citations, events, and commentaries not included in your résumé have a forum.

Organize and build your online career portfolio around your major and interests. Keep in mind that a music portfolio will include different samples from ones for aviation mechanics or nursing. Also, career portfolios need to be updated and/or re-organized as needed, depending on your target job, to reflect your growth and capabilities.

Begin with but don't limit yourself to the following:

- educational transcripts, diplomas, certificates
- honors, citations, letters of recommendation
- scholarships, and awards
- photos and videos; music and audio samples
- internships and co-op experiences
- workshops and seminars you've attended
- sports and co-curricular leadership positions
- travel, languages, relevant hobbies
- volunteer and community service
- performances and presentations
- published or printed works

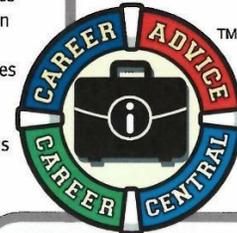

Note: An online career portfolio is open to public scrutiny; use common sense and discretion when uploading. Don't include anything you wouldn't want a potential employer to view. Be aware of copyright, sensitive business, and privacy issues. For example: You may not own rights to some of the material you created during an internship, believe it or not.

Paper to PDFs, paint to pixels.

Be efficient, save time: Scan and digitize all files and documents into locked PDFs as soon as you can. Keep file sizes small. Only upload items — Word docs, .jpg, .mpg, etc. — that you feel represent your best work. Organize files in a logical sequence. Provide clear, concise descriptions and statements. Present yourself professionally and address the recruiter's needs; it will make it easier for them to take you seriously and assess your fit into the company.

Build it and keep it for life, FREE.

The beauty of your CollegeCentral.com career portfolio is that it can be continually updated after graduation as you evolve and grow in your career. So whether you're a student seeking a first-time job, or an alumna/us changing employment, your online career portfolio remains an informative biographical record and an effective marketing tool.

i n a nutshell:

Like all tools, online career portfolios are a means to an end, so use them!

- Be relevant, clear, organized, and professional
- Formats: DOC, XLS, PDF, GIF, JPEG, MPG, MOV, SWF
- Check that there are no copyright infringements to what you upload as samples
- Don't post anything you may regret later
- Update where / when needed
- Portfolios include Career, Art and Design, Dance, Music, and Theater
- Full online HELP instructions are available after registering at CollegeCentral.com

Your career portfolio is a portrait of you. Make sure the image is clear.

Personal Statement

Before joining the Theater Program at Sample University I had a passion for and had been intrigued by acting. I joined a theatre group where we performed every six months at the Bob Hope theatre. From this I was given a scholarship to join another theatre association where I developed further skills as an actor and as an individual. During these classes I trained in dance and singing, helping my confidence to grow and further my passion in acting.

Dear Mr. Carson:

The management trainee position you advertised in today's Hamlet Gazette greatly interests me. The Rest Easy Hotels have always served as landmarks for me when I travel, and I would like to contribute to their continued growth. I have enclosed my résumé for your review.

Sell

In May, I will be graduating from Large State University with a degree in business. While in school, I developed strong organizational and customer service skills. As a dormitory assistant, I organized events, led meetings, and assisted students. As treasurer of the Business Society, I maintained the budget and presented budget reports. My summer jobs also required extensive interaction with the public. I believe these experiences have prepared me for your management trainee position.

I would appreciate the opportunity to discuss my qualifications more fully in an interview. I can be reached at (545) 555-5555. Thank you for your consideration.

Pinehurst Surgical Clinic
5 First Village Drive
Pinehurst, NC 28374

Dear Sir:

It is with great enthusiasm that I am seeking employment at Pinehurst Surgical Clinic. Your facility has a great reputation for quality care. I am especially interested in job opportunities for Practical Nurses and would look forward to acquire work experience in a highly recommended institution.

Communication, compassion, service, verbal, instructional skills and a strong work ethic are all qualities that I would be able to bring to Pinehurst Surgical Clinic. At this time I have completed the Licensed Practical Nurse course at Sandhills Community College and have passed the NCLEX-PN exam.

As you will note on my résumé, I worked in a variety of medical jobs which introduced me to clients of all ages and socio-economic backgrounds.

I look forward to meeting with you to further discuss my qualifications and opportunities associated with working for Pinehurst Surgical Clinic. I am sure you will find my character and work ethic make me a strong candidate for this position.

My schedule is flexible and I can be reached at 910-555-1212 or 910-555-2852. Thank you.

Sincerely,

Prospecting Letter

January 16, 2011

Mr. Brett Newkirk
Director of College Recruiting
Midwest Mercantile Company
4500 Randolph Drive
Chicago, IL 60601

Dear Mr. Newkirk:

I read your company's description in NACE's Job Choices: Diversity Edition and would like to inquire about employment opportunities in your management training program. I want to work in retail management and would like to remain in the Chicago area after graduation.

I shall receive my B.S. degree in communication studies this May. My interest in business started in Junior Achievement in high school and developed further through a variety of sales and retail positions during college. My internship with a large department store convinced me to pursue a career in retail. When I researched the top retailers in Chicago, Midwest Mercantile emerged as having a strong market position, an excellent training program, and a reputation for excellent customer service. In short, you provide the kind of professional environment I seek.

My resume is enclosed for your consideration. My education and experience match the qualifications you seek in your management trainees, but they don't tell the whole story. I know from customer and supervisor feedback that I have the interpersonal skills and motivation needed to build a successful career in retail management. And my relatively extensive experience gives me confidence in my career direction and in my abilities to perform competently.

I know how busy you must be during this time of year, but I would appreciate a few minutes of your time. I shall call you during the week of January 23 to discuss employment possibilities. In the meantime, if you need to contact me, my number is 847/491-8843 and my e-mail is a-chen@northwestern.edu.

Thank you very much for considering my request. I look forward to talking with you.

Sincerely,

Amy Chen

Dear Ms. Hundahl:

Dr. Clifton Carr, professor of economics at City College, suggested that I contact you. He thought that, as an alumna, you would be in an excellent position to assist me with a career decision.

As an economics student, I am exploring which career path to pursue. Securities, trading, and investment banking work all sound interesting to me at this point, but I want to go into my campus interviews next semester with a clear sense of direction. I would like to get your advice on the long-term career implications of each path as well as a better understanding of the day-to-day activities of a broker.

I shall call you next week to see if we can arrange a brief meeting at your convenience. Thank you for considering my request.

Ms. Mary Lou Nelson
Manager of Human Resources
Continental Industries, Inc.
2900 Rosemont Blvd.
Rosemont, IL 60018

Dear Ms. Nelson:

I am applying for the web developer position that was advertised with Northwestern University Career Services this week. The position seems to fit very well with my education, experience, and career interests.

Your position requires skills in various types of programming and software used in web development. My academic program in computer studies emphasized C, C++, .NET, PHP, Visual Basic, Assembler, Java, and MSSQL. In addition, I have extensive experience with several software packages in web development, including Adobe Illustrator, Photoshop, After Effects, Dreamweaver, and Microsoft Visual Studio. My experience as a department computer consultant gave me exposure to both PC (Windows 2000, NT, XP, Vista) and Macintosh OSX platforms, as well as Microsoft Active Directory Novell and NT LANs. Additionally, I worked as a summer intern in computing operations for a major city newspaper where I gained knowledge of enterprise systems, content management systems, and e-commerce operations. My enclosed resume provides more details on my qualifications.

My background and career goals seem to match your job requirements well. I am confident that I can perform the job effectively. Furthermore, I am genuinely interested in the position and in working for Continental Industries, Inc. Your firm has an excellent reputation and comes highly recommended to me.

Would you please consider my request for a personal interview to discuss my qualifications and to learn more about this opportunity? I shall call you next week to see if a meeting can be arranged. Should you need to reach me, please feel free to contact me at 847/683-4388 or m-lopez@northwestern.edu.

Thank you for your consideration. I look forward to talking with you.

Dear Dr. Lang:

I am writing to inform you that I am withdrawing my application for the program coordinator position with the school. As I indicated in my interview with you, I have been exploring several employment possibilities. This week I was offered an administrative position with a local city government and, after careful consideration, I decided to accept it. The position provides a very good match for my interests at this point in my career.

I want to thank you very much for interviewing and considering me for your position. I enjoyed meeting you and learning about the innovative community programs you are planning. You have a fine school, and I wish you and your staff well.

Dear Mr. Wisniewski:

I am writing to confirm my acceptance of your employment offer of April 20, and to tell you how delighted I am to be joining Data International in Northbrook. The work is exactly what I have prepared to perform and hoped to do. I feel confident that I can make a significant contribution to the corporation, and I am grateful for the opportunity you have given me.

As we discussed, I will report to work at 8:00 a.m. on July 1, and will have completed the medical examination and drug testing by the start date. Additionally, I shall complete all employment and insurance forms for the new-employee orientation.

I look forward to working with you and your fine team. I appreciate your confidence in me and am very happy to be joining your staff.

What to include in your resignation letter

We've seen a lot of resignation letters! Trust us when we say – keep it simple and straightforward. You never know whether you might have to turn back to this same employer in the future. There are certain things that are standard which need to be there along with any additional information that you want to communicate. A resignation letter must include:

- Formal statement of resignation
- Your last working day
- A thank you to your employer for the opportunities you have had during your employment
- Your willingness to provide assistance in transition

If you keep in mind these basics things, you'll end up writing a good resignation letter.

This Before version was literally screaming for help! Graham didn't stand a chance of getting a good interview with this resume. There's no phone number on the resume. Nothing is highlighted or bolded, and there's no Objective or Career Profile. This resume has no sales power at all!

This is not enough of a job description to really explain what Graham did. Also, he doesn't list any dates in the resume. An employer will want to know for how long and when you were at these companies!

Personal issues need not be included in a resume unless they specifically pertain to a job you're targeting.

Mr. Walter F. Jensen
Vice President of Logistics
Space Industries, Inc.
20 East Commerce Highway
San Diego, CA 18274

Dear Mr. Jensen:

I am applying for the position of Corporate Distribution Manager at Space Industries. I have excellent credentials, and I am sure that you will be impressed with my accomplishments, as set forth on the enclosed resume. Read this document carefully!

I hold an M.B.A. in Materials Management from the University of Oklahoma, where I graduated in 1993. My undergraduate degree is in Industrial Engineering from the same school. In both instances I was an outstanding scholar, graduating with honors and serving in leadership roles in several student organizations.

My professional credentials include over six years in the field of Logistics. This includes over two years as Distribution Manager for General Electronics, a Fortune 200 manufacturer of computer chips and electronic harnesses, with annual sales of $5.3 billion. I am thoroughly versed in all aspects of modern distribution methods, and can bring state-of-the-art skills to your firm.

Let me suggest that even if you don't have a current opening on your management team, that you may want to meet with me anyway. A meeting will show that I have the kind of potential that may warrant some organizational shifts to make room for me as a valued member of your staff. We can discuss the specifics of title and compensation requirements at that time.

I will call you on Wednesday, October 28th to arrange for an interview. Convenient dates for me include November 7th, 14th, 18th and 21st.

I expect that we will be meeting shortly!

Sincerely,

Priscilla P. Pushy

Dear Ms. Linderman:

I would very much like to apply for a position as a Regional Lobbyist with Dorrie Manufacturing Company. I hope that I have the necessary qualifications to be considered for this position.

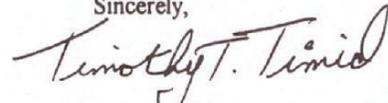

Although I lack a college degree, and my written communication skills are not as good as they could be, I hope that you will give consideration to my employment candidacy. I am a hard worker and do my best to accomplish the objectives of my employer.

I would be very pleased if you would look favorably on my employment candidacy. I want this job very much and would work very hard if selected. I know that I am not fully qualified for this position, but I hope that you will give me a chance to demonstrate how well I can do.

Although there are likely others whose education and experience make them better qualified for this position, I still hope that you will view my resume favorably. I hope to hear from you soon.

Thank you very much for taking the time and effort to read my resume. I appreciate this very much.

Sincerely,

Be prepared for the Interview

Interview Questions and Practical Ways to Answer

Questions start the minute the interview does, and to show that you are an exceptional candidate, you need to be prepared to answer not only the typical questions, but also the unexpected. You can expect questions regarding your qualifications, your academic preparation, career interests, experience, and ones that assess your personality.

1. Tell me about yourself

The most often asked question in interviews. You need to have a short statement prepared in your mind. Be careful that it does not sound rehearsed. Limit it to work-related items unless instructed otherwise. Talk about things you have done and jobs you have held that relate to the position you are interviewing for. Start with the item farthest back and work up to the present.

2. Tell me about two suggestions you have made to your supervisor in the past year. How did you come up with the ideas? What happened? How do you feel about the way things went?

This is a creative thinking question.

3. What do you know about this organization?

This question is one reason to do some research on the organization before the interview. Find out where they have been and where they are going. What are the current issues and who are the major players?

4. What have you done to improve your knowledge in the last year?

Try to include improvement activities that relate to the job. A wide variety of activities can be mentioned as positive self-improvement. Have some good ones handy to mention.

5. Describe a creative endeavor you can take ownership for that impacted on the efficiency or effectiveness of your organization?

This is a creative thinking question.

6. What can you do for us?

This means “If we were to hire you, will you help me with the challenges I face? What are skills, and how much do you know about the subject or field that our organization is in?”

7. Why should we hire you?

Point out how your assets meet what the organization needs. Do not mention any other candidates to make a comparison.

Interview Questions and Practical Ways to Answer

8. What is your greatest strength?

Numerous answers are good, just stay positive. A few good examples: Your ability to prioritize, Your problem-solving skills, Your ability to work under pressure, Your ability to focus on projects, Your professional expertise, Your leadership skills, Your positive attitude .

9. Describe a situation where you were responsible for getting others to make a change. What role did you play and what actions did you take? What was the outcome? If you had to do it again, would you do anything differently?

(Flexibility/adaptability)

10. Describe a time when you've had to work with strong-willed peers. What did you do? How did you handle them so you could influence their decisions?"

(Interpersonal effectiveness)

11. Tell me about your ability to work under pressure.

You may say that you thrive under certain types of pressure. Give an example that relates to the type of position applied for.

12. What motivates you to do your best on the job?

This is a personal trait that only you can say, but good examples are: Challenge, (Achievement, and Recognition)

13. Tell me about a time when you had to use your presentation skills to influence someone's opinion. How did you prepare for the presentation? What points did you emphasize? How was the information received?"

(Interpersonal effectiveness)

14. Tell me about a time when you helped resolve a dispute between others.

Pick a specific incident. Concentrate on your problem solving technique and not the dispute you settled.

15. Explain how you accomplished an important personal goal.

16. Name three things you have done in the past two years to grow in your job.

(Personal mastery)

17. Do you have any questions for me?

Always have some questions prepared. Questions prepared where you will be an asset to the organization are good. How soon will I be able to be productive?

Questions to Ask Your Interviewer

- 1. What do you do in a typical work day? In a typical week?

Ask this question in your interview with a hiring manager. It shows you're enthusiastic about the company and want to know about life on the job.
- 2. How will the work I'll be doing contribute to the organization's mission?

You get a better sense of the organization you're interviewing with and the extent to which you'd even want to work there.
- 3. If I'm hired, in which area of your organization might I work?

If you've learned about the company's various divisions on its website, be sure to incorporate that knowledge into the question. It shows you've done your research and are interested in the company.
- 4. What is the natural career progression for employees with my skillset?

This question shows you're thinking about the future and hope to stay with the company.
- 5. Does this organization have a mentor or coaching program?

This question illustrates your desire to be the best employee you can.
- 6. What kind of internal and external training do you provide?

This is another question that shows you want to do the best job possible.
- 7. Who would make the ideal candidate for this position?

This is an opportunity for the candidate to hear what the employer is seeking and a chance to elaborate on those examples.
- 8. Is diversity a part of your strategic framework?

Don't just ask if the company supports diversity in general. Make sure that it's part of the overall plan.
- 9. How would you describe your company's culture and morale?

This question provides both you and the recruiter with another opportunity to determine if you and the company are suited for each other.
- 10. What are the key challenges and/or problems facing the person in this position?

Don't make this your only question. Pose it amid questions about the company and don't ask it at all if the information is available elsewhere.

Ms. Marcia H. Meeks

Richmond, VA 23219

Dear Ms. Meeks:

Thank you so much for your time and advice during my visit to your office last week. I very much appreciate your inviting me to visit since this was my first experience seeing the hands-on work which takes place in a childcare department. I learned a great deal, and hope to share what I learned with members of our student chapter.

After January, I will be in contact with you again to explore the possibility of arranging a summer internship with your firm. As I mentioned to you when we met, I had an opportunity to work on an intense, four-day interdisciplinary project judged by faculty in which my team received top honors. I gained valuable teamwork, problem-solving and presentation skills and learned to work effectively with students studying to enter different professions. I believe my skills would make me an asset to an organization like yours which often must produce excellent work under tight time constraints.

Thank you again for all your help, and I look forward to talking with you in the coming months.

Sincerely,

Using a QR code
on your Resume

A new trend is for job seekers to include a QR code on their resume or business cards. Having a QR code on your resume could help differentiate from the competition. Plus, if there is a particular online destination you want hiring managers to visit - like your online portfolio - it's a good way to encourage a visit.

What will it display?

It could be a link to your online resume/portfolio or your favorite search links about you / your accomplishments as one sees through Google search and read on to find out that the possibilities could be endless

How to Start:

Create an online portfolio or online resume.

You may have your own domain name or just add it to the available website services for online CVs and resumes like www.visualcv.com. You can generate the QR code easily by following either of these steps:

- Go to <http://goo.gl/>, shorten your URL, click on the “details” link on right hand side and the next window displays your QR code. Save image and use where required.
- Go to a QR code generator website kaywa.com

Tip: Below your QR code image write: Scan to see my online (insert type of media in QR code).
