

As always, we at Sandhills are committed to offering the best community college education in the state. We have the faculty, staff, facilities, technology, and equipment to prepare you for university transfer or to start on your career as an engineer, cosmetologist, nurse, X-ray tech, or a host of other high-paying professions.

During this time of COVID we have an additional responsibility – and that is to keep you safe. The number of COVID infections rises daily in North Carolina – threatening to overwhelm our state before a vaccine can be developed and distributed. We at Sandhills will do our part to stop that and to keep safe all members of our campus community.

We will continue to learn and work from home where possible until this crisis is over. For classes that do meet on campus we will maintain social distance and continue to observe our 100% mask policy. Campus classrooms and offices will be cleaned at least twice daily by our maintenance staff, and each building will be given a “deep cleaning” every night.

Despite our best efforts it is inevitable that we will experience some COVID cases, either on campus or in our contacts with the community. Should a COVID case occur, please click on our Campus Exposure Procedures to learn what to do.

Our commitment to monitoring COVID cases and conducting effective contact tracing is absolute. The number and nature of our COVID cases on campus can easily be monitored by clicking on Confirmed Positive Cases.

So welcome. We are delighted to have you at Sandhills. We promise you an excellent education and as much of the “college experience” as possible during this unusual time. But we also promise to do all we can to mitigate the risks of this virus and to keep you well.

Thank you.
John Dempsey
